Eliot Vale. Blackheath. London. S.E.
3 June 1862.

72

Dear Sir,

I enclosed are some further efforts to rescue the English props from being altogether given up to the parties whose wishes are limited to seeing their cotton trade restored by the success of the rebellion.

It would be encouraging if we sometimes saw the evidence of recognition by friends in America; as might easily be done by the transmission of an occasional newspaper. And we might extract from it something to circulate.

Yours very truly and sincerely,

J. Verrat Rumpus

Editor of "Liberator." Boston